2.3 - Teaching- Learning Process

2.3.1 - Student centric methods, such as experiential learning, participative learning and problem solving methodologies are used for enhancing learning experiences

The college uses teaching approaches that are centred on the students. The majority of our college's students come from rural backgrounds. Aside from the lecture technique of instruction, teachers use a variety of methods to help students build a clear understanding of subjects. Teachers explain the subject to students using illustrations from everyday living in rural areas as well as ICT technologies. By structuring activities such as discussions, assignments, and seminars, learning becomes more experiential, interactive, problem-solving, and socialistic. Co-curricular activities, extracurricular activities, sports, and cultural events are all organised by the college to aid students in their overall growth.

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

Chemistry, Physics, Botany, and Zoology departments use experiments to teach students the concepts of the subject by watching phenomena in front of them. This type of learning develops experience of the notion in the pupils, which becomes deeply ingrained in the brain, resulting in the concept being with the students indefinitely. Students participate in the teaching-learning process through question-and-answer sessions, group discussions, and seminars, among other methods.

PARTICIPATIVE LARNING

In practical classes and tutorial sessions, group learning and participation are emphasised. To foster participatory learning, science departments use video demonstrations of experiments coordinated by students. Through a video presentation, political science students learn about the actual workings of the legislature. Students in Commerce get a firsthand look at how a bank operates. NSS organises national events and social outreach programmes in order to instil patriotic and social ideals in students and to foster participatory learning. All of the college's approaches build student confidence and self-reliance, as well as give opportunities for self-assessment and self-evaluation. This also helps them learn better by improving their listening, speaking, reading, writing, and visual skills.

PROBLEM SOLVING METHODS

All of the college's departments use a problem-solving approach to education. Teachers assign issues to the entire class or to smaller groups of students to be solved in the classroom or in the next class. The overall consequences of the college's teaching-learning methods are that students learn to apply theoretical knowledge learned in the classroom to real-life situations, giving them confidence in addressing difficulties through the use of inventive ideas.

The college features one smart classroom with internet access and seven classrooms with LCD projectors and displays. Smart classrooms are used by teachers to teach crucial and perplexing topics. All departments use smart classrooms and other ICT equipment. Almost all of the departments have been given PCs/laptops, which are utilized to teach smaller groups of students. The college features a computer lab that is well-equipped with all of the necessary equipment. Teachers assist students in using an online learning platform to learn. For teaching and evaluation during the lockdown period, online teaching platforms such as Google Meet, Zoom, Facebook Live, and Whatsapp groups, are employed. Teachers are encouraged to participate in training programmes, workshops, seminars, and conferences relating to the use of ICT in teaching and learning. The College conducted an internal evaluation process in accordance with the Rashtrasant Tukdoji Maharaj Nagpur University's norms. The academic calendar is created by the college based on the university's examination and evaluation timetable. The academic calendar, as well as the exam schedule, is posted on the notice board, website, and Whatsapp groups. The college's internal and external examination processes are both monitored by the examination department. We have implemented a Choice Based Credit System of teaching and evaluation, in which the college administers one internal and one external examination. Unit tests, seminars, lab work, and other forms of continual and comprehensive evaluation of students' learning levels are also conducted by college departments. Prior to the University examination, an internal evaluation is undertaken. The internal and practical examination timetables were created by the college examination and evaluation committee in accordance with the university examination circular. Internal examinations for the odd and even semesters were done in an online mode at the college level because to the covid-19 pandemic lockdown. Internal examination results are submitted online using a college login account to the university examination portal. The college examination cell received one hard copy of the filled-in marks.

2.5.2 - Mechanism to deal with internal examination related grievances is transparent, time- bound and efficient

Internal examination grievances, such as marks entry problems, absences, and so on, are first addressed by the department's head of department. Internal evaluations, such as assignment submission, class test, seminar, and practical oral related issues, were resolved at the college level in the corresponding department. One assignment, two class tests, attendance, and other day-to-day activities make up the Internal Assessment, which accounts for 20% of a paper's marks. Internal student marks that have been submitted improperly or absences due to an examination online portal server fault are handled by the college examination officer and immediately informed to the university examination department. The college examination officer resolved complaints about external examinations such as missing papers, incorrect mark entry, hall ticket issues, and mistakes in name and subject. The external theory examination of University was conducted at the college level during the lockdown due to Covid-19. Any technological issues, such as internet access, were dealt with by the appropriate department. As the College has situated in very rural areas of Vidarbha near the Nagpur, most of the students come from the village background as local rural language of their communication. Students can not communicate in English language perfectly. Advance and Slow learners students are identified the teachers by various methods such as SSC & HSC marks, attention during lectures in the class and personal interaction with the students. This identification is based on performance of the students in their class. It is general observation that slow learner students do not grasp class lecture due to poor language knowledge and writing, reading and speaking skills. 2.3 - Teaching- Learning Process

2.3.1 - Student centric methods, such as experiential learning, participative learning and problem solving methodologies are used for enhancing learning experiences

The college uses teaching approaches that are centred on the students. The majority of our college's students come from rural backgrounds. Aside from the lecture technique of instruction, teachers use a variety of methods to help students build a clear understanding of subjects. Teachers explain the subject to students using illustrations from everyday living in rural areas as well as ICT technologies. By structuring activities such as discussions, assignments, and seminars, learning becomes more experiential, interactive, problem-solving, and socialistic. Co-curricular activities, extracurricular activities, sports, and cultural events are all organised by the college to aid students in their overall growth.

Chemistry, Physics, Botany, and Zoology departments use

experiments to teach students the concepts of the subject by watching phenomena in front of them. This type of learning develops experience of the notion in the pupils, which becomes deeply ingrained in the brain, resulting in the concept being with the students indefinitely. Students participate in the teaching-learning process through question-and-answer sessions, group discussions, and seminars, among other methods.

PARTICIPATIVE LARNING

In practical classes and tutorial sessions, group learning and participation are emphasised. To foster participatory learning, science departments use video demonstrations of experiments coordinated by students. Through a video presentation, political science students learn about the actual workings of the legislature. Students in Commerce get a firsthand look at how a bank operates. NSS organises national events and social outreach programmes in order to instil patriotic and social ideals in students and to foster participatory learning. All of the college's approaches build student confidence and self-reliance, as well as give opportunities for self-assessment and self-evaluation. This also helps them learn better by improving their listening, speaking, reading, writing, and visual skills.

PROBLEM SOLVING METHODS

All of the college's departments use a problem-solving approach to education. Teachers assign issues to the entire class or to smaller groups of students to be solved in the classroom or in the next class. The overall consequences of the college's teaching-learning methods are that students learn to apply theoretical knowledge learned in the classroom to real-life situations, giving them confidence in addressing difficulties through the use of inventive ideas.

2.3.2 - Teachers use ICT enabled tools for effective teaching-learning process. Write description in maximum of 200 words

Teachers use the ICT tools to free up time to teach other subjects, impart higher-level knowledge to students, and engage in extracurricular activities. Students will acquire an independent and active learning habit as a result of this. The college features one smart classroom with internet access and seven classrooms with LCD projectors and displays. Smart classrooms are used by teachers to teach crucial and perplexing topics. All departments use smart classrooms and other ICT equipment. Almost all of the departments have been given PCs/laptops, which are utilized to teach smaller groups of students. The college features a computer lab that is well-equipped with all of the necessary equipment. Teachers assist students in using an online learning platform to learn. For teaching and evaluation during the lockdown period, online teaching platforms such as Google Meet, Zoom, Facebook Live, and Whatsapp groups, are employed. Teachers are encouraged to participate in training programmes, workshops, seminars, and conferences relating to the use of ICT in teaching and learning. Only a few teachers have their own YouTube channel. All of our college's faculty members use ICT-enabled instructional approaches. On an online platform, the college lecturers efficiently utilised ICT resources for excellent teaching-learning.
